

8           extending an invitation by a first party to at least one second party for 9   physically positioning themselves at said location in close proximity to the positioned 10 rug;

11           initiating a discussion corresponding to the script by the first party at said
12 location, and engaging the second party in a discourse that relates to the conflict from 13 the perspective of the first party; and

14           continuing the discussion according to the script, with each of the remaining 15 parties speaking in sequence each of the plurality of phrases together with respective 16 additional discourse that relates to the conflict from the perspective of the speaking
17 party, while the parties remain at the location, to encourage respectful and safe 18 behavior.

1           11. (Twice Amended) A method for enabling a conflict resolution process
2 to be conducted by two or more parties in mutual conflict who have positioned 3 themselves in proximity to a conflict resolution area, said two or more parties having 4 been pre-instructed as to a script and a set of instructions to be followed in connection 5 with said script, the method comprising:

6           speaking by one of the two or more parties to another of the two or more 7 parties a set of statements according to the script and the set of instructions; and

8           repeating said speaking by each remaining party of the two or more parties
9 until all parties have spoken while remaining in proximity to the conflict resolution 10 area to encourage respectful and safe behavior;

11           wherein said conflict resolution area is a specific location identified by the two 12 or more parties as a conflict resolution area defined by a rug or a sheet about which 13 the parties position themselves.

1           16. (Amended) A kit for enabling conflict resolution among two or more
2    parties comprising:
3            a portable object comprising a rug or a sheet, said portable object adapted to 4    be used as a physical and symbolic focus for convening a conflict resolution 5    discussion; and
6            a set of instructions for use in association with said portable object, to 7    encourage participants involved in a mutual conflict to encourage each other to 8    physically convene around the portable object and mutually encourage each other to 9    reach a resolution to the conflict;
10            said portable object and kit being contained in a container enabling the kit to 11   be transported about to various venues.

Please add new claims 20-23:

1           20. (New) A method for enabling a conflict resolution among two or more
2    parties, comprising:
3            providing a script to be spoken by at least one of the two or more parties, the 4    script including a plurality of phrases, each phrase corresponding to the beginning of a
5    respective statement;
6            positioning a sheet at a location for the two or more parties to physically 7    position themselves with respect to the sheet for engaging in a discussion; 8            extending an invitation by a first party to at least one second party for 9    physically positioning themselves at said location in close proximity to the positioned 10   sheet;

11                   initiating a discussion corresponding to the script by the first party at said
12                   location, and engaging the second party in a discourse that relates to the conflict from 13                   the perspective of the first party; and
14                   continuing the discussion according to the script, with each of the remaining 15                   parties speaking in sequence each of the plurality of phrases together with respective 16                   additional discourse that relates to the conflict from the perspective of the speaking
17                   party, while the parties remain at the location, to encourage respectful and safe
18                   behavior.

1                   21.        (New) A method for enabling a conflict resolution among two or more
2                   organizations, each organization being represented by a respective speaker,
3                   comprising:
4                   providing a script to be spoken by at least one of the two or more speakers, the
5                   script including a plurality of phrases, each phrase corresponding to the beginning of a
6                   respective statement;
7                   positioning a portable object at a location for the two or more speakers to 8                   physically position themselves with respect to the portable object for engaging in a 9                   discussion;
10                  extending an invitation by a first organization to at least one second 11                  organization for physically positioning themselves at said location in close proximity 12                  to the positioned portable object;
13                  initiating a discussion corresponding to the script by the first speaker at said
14                  location, and engaging the second speaker in a discourse that relates to the conflict 15                  from the perspective of the first organization; and

16 continuing the discussion according to the script, with each of the remaining 17 speakers speaking in sequence each of the plurality of phrases together with 18 respective additional discourse that relates to the conflict from the perspective of the 19 speaking organization, while the speakers remain at the location, to encourage 20 respectful and safe behavior.

1 22. (New) The method as set forth in Claim 21, further comprising 2 developing a plan accomplished by mutual encouragement to further discuss the 3 conflict and to explore how the two or more organizations could attain improved 4 inter-party relations.

1 23. (New) The method as set forth in Claim 22, wherein said discussion
2 includes articulating a mutually agreeable plan for achieving said improved inter-3 party relations.